

An Ageing World

Since 1950, average life expectancy has steadily increased across the world. However, significant disparities between regions remain.

